G.W.V.A. TO PRESENT PROBLEMS BEFORE ROYAL COMMISSION

The royal commission investigating returned veterans' problems will sit at Calgary at an early date.

The returned men's organizations must prepare the most convincing case possible to place before them. The commission will not handle individual cases during their trip but such cases as applicable will be used as evidence by the association in support of their arguments.

All veterans, whether members of any organization or not, should submit their troubles and trials, together with suggestions for relief of same. These should be submitted through the nearest branch of the G.W.V.A., but in unorganized districts should be submitted direct to R. Gallacher, provincial secretary, G.W.V.A., 207-208 Oldfellows' Block, Calgary.

G.W.V.A.'s Record Service

The service which the Great War Veterans' association of Canada conducted to assist in the return of the returned men of Canada and their dependents is partially indicated by a news report published yesterday concerning the association's activities during the year just closed.

At 21,000 claims of ex-servicemen, arising out of the war, were dealt with. Settlement of these claims necessitated sending out 70,000 letters and the interviewing of government departments and individuals to the number of 12,000.

The inaugural meeting of the Wetaskiwin hospital board for 1923 was held in the council chamber on January 10, with Messrs. Rodell and Hogan, and Messrs. Montgomery, Gohard, Parker, Berry, Chandler, Johnson and Curt Smith in attendance.

The secretary treasurer opened the meeting by calling for nominations to fill the position of chairman of the board, when Mrs. Rodell and Curt Smith were nominated. The former declined and Mr. Smith was elected by acclamation.

Mr. Smith, on taking the chair, in a few words thanked the members for the appointment, and in offering to do his best, hoped to give satisfaction.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and adopted.

J. E. Fraser was re-elected secretary treasurer of the hospital at a remuneration of $10.00 per month for his services as heretofore.

Mr. Montgomery suggested the appointing of three standing committees as follows: Finance, Purchasing and House committees and that these should be comprised of three members each. This was adopted.

ASH TROPHY NOW
IN WETASKIWIN

Two trials of Wetaskiwin curlers meted to the Saskatchewan team on Saturday last determined to capture the famous Ash Trophy, if at all possible. The ice was in good condition and very strenuous games were played and at the end of the fourteenth end, it was found that the aggregate scores were tied, as Graham won by 19-8, and Ellis was defeated by the same figures.

In the extra end each of the Wetaskiwin rink scored, Graham getting two, and Ellis made a perfect draw to the tee for his tally, cutting his opponent out of two, which, had he missed, would have again tied the score.

The Wetaskiwin rink were: Geo. Grahame, skip; J. S. Orr, D. MacCallum and A. Duke.

J. P. Ellis, skip; T. C. Rubbra, W. Gilchrist, and H. S. Dalisille.

WINTER CARNIVAL EDMONTON NEXT WEEK BIG EVENT

The special excursion rates on all railways gives an opportunity for a railway gives an opportunity for everyone to visit the big Winter Carnival at Edmonton at a reasonable expense. The carnival committee has spared no expense in making up a program that will be quite different from anything of the kind ever seen in Western Canada. Norval Baple, Miss Lamb, Everett McGowan and Ben Oskey, all champion speed skaters, will be present. Several bands and orchestras have been engaged. There will be torchlight processions, huge bonfires, dog races, ski tournament, fancy skating, musical drive by auto.

MISS BEULAH ROBINSON
Wetaskiwin's Royal Princesses at the Edmonton Winter Carnival, to be held next week.

Decorations and illuminations, fancy dress ball at the Macdonald hotel, and a large number of events of unusual interest will be taking place.

One of the chief events will be the crowning of the elected queen and the court festivities in which the Royal Princesses will participate. This part of the program will be in English in character, reproducing as far as possible the coronation of Queen Victoria in 1837, and some of the costumes are of royal magnificence and are actually the identical dresses used at court presentations in the early part of last century. There will be a procession of the Queen's little train bearers, etc., this reproducing as far as possible the actual royal court scenes.

The carnival committee announces that there will be ample accommodation for all visitors, on up date list having been compiled of rooming houses where rooms can be secured at reasonable rates.

Why Are the U.F.A. in Politics?

An interested audience listened to the address of the Rev. Mr. Irwin on "Why are the United Farmers in Politics?" delivered in his own church on Sunday night last.

The speaker traced the development of the old parties from their origins based on fundamental principles to their modern alliances with large vested interests. He pointed out that the Farmers representing an economic interest naturally sought the control of a political machine, and not finding one available set about creating one of their own. He spoke at some length on the contrast between the "open door" policy and the "closed door" policy within the ranks of the farmers, calling attention to the radical changes that would be forced through the adoption of the latter policy.

There is a growing interest being manifested in Mr. Irwin's series of Sunday evening talks on live, questions men are asking. Next Sunday he is announced to speak on "Why is Prohibition a Failure?" and the following Sunday his subject will be, "What About the League of Nations?"

It is not the business men of the towns and cities that put the farmers store out of business. It is the farmers themselves. In some way an idea has spread that business can be conducted on a very small percentage.

We have heard farmers say that ten per cent of an advance on coal had been sufficient to satisfy them. A little lesson on "workable" is in order for those who think like this—Lacombe Globe.

WEDDINGS

STILES — MOORE

A marriage was celebrated in Immanuel church on Tuesday, Jan. 11, between Miss Regina Moore and Mr. Laurence Stiles. The bride's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Gravesman, who live near Falun, were present. The bridegroom is a member of Lord Strathcona's Horse, and is at present stationed in Calgary. The service was taken by the Rev. W. J. James.

ANOTHER HONOR TO WETASKIWIN

In the current issue of the Canadian Automotive Trade, a national magazine published in Toronto, Ont., appears a half page picture of the Christmas window display of Simsbury Co. of this city. The reason this picture is given such a prominent place is that this enterprising firm had the honor of winning the first prize for the best Christmas window display, showing auto accessories, etc. for which they were awarded $15.00 in cash. The second prize was won by a garage on Young Street, Toronto.

It is a very great distinction, indeed, to have the best displayed window in all of the Dominion of Canada, and we join in extending congratulations to this enterprising firm in the honor they have brought to Wetaskiwin and to themselves.

The photo of the window which was awarded the prize was taken by the Walin Studio.

This firm has since received word that they have also received the first prize for the best dressed window offered by the Alberta Motorist, of Calgary, for the best window in Alberta.

Directors Want Fair
On the Same Days
Or Earlier in August

The first meeting of the new board of directors of the Wetaskiwin Agricultural Society was held in the U.F.A. Hall on Wednesday afternoon last with a good attendance. President F. Freeman occupied the chair.

Owing to the scarcity of seed grain in the district it was decided not to hold a seed fair this year.

Considerable discussion took place as to the advisability of cutting the fair down to two days this year, but on a vote being taken it was decided to hold a three day fair as usual.

Dates asked for will be August 12th 14th and 15th, with the alternative of any three days between August 1 and 12.

Last year's board of managing directors, consisting of R. E. Sparks, C. B. McManis and L. H. Newville, was re-elected to act this year along with the president, Mr. Freeman, and C. D. Smith was re-elected as secretary.

Messrs. Ford Freeman and C. D. Smith were elected as delegates to attend the annual fair convention at Calgary on January 25th and 26th.

H.E. Sinnott, Ex-Mayor of Calgary Gets Seven Years
For Taking Clients Funds

Calgary, Jan. 11—Seven years in Prince Albert penitentiary was the sentence pronounced by Magistrate Saunders on H. E. Sinnott, local bar tender, when he pleaded guilty in popular court Tuesday to two charges of misappropriating clients' funds.

The offenses alleged, consisted in the converting to his own use the sum of $1,400 entrusted to him for investment by Mrs. Alice Sullivan, and $1,100 given to him in trust by Samuel Hays for investment.

Sinnott was for two years mayor of Calgary and last year was chairman of the public school board.

Edson was visited by a bad fire which started in an ice cream parlor about five o'clock on Tuesday morning. The block on Main street between Third and Fourth Avenues was destroyed, the places of business including the Edson ice cream parlor, the Edson Hour theatre, Road's Bakery, Edson News stand, Miss Koon's fancy goods and the Imperial Bank. The engine failed to work and the fire was fought by a bucket brigade. The damage is about $75,000.

CRYSTALS DEFEAT LACOMBE IN FAST LEAGUE GAME

No Score First Two Periods. Warning of Referee Somers heeded and there were no Penalties. Wetaskiwin Defeated at Lacombe Friday Night. Red Deer here Saturday for Exhibition Game, and Leduc here on Tuesday.

On Friday, January 12, the local puckers journeyed to Lacombe and suffered defeat at the hands of the husky south town aggregation. Owing to the fact that the referee allowed everything to pass, the game became gradually rougher as period followed period. Lacombe showed some real chancy combination and emerged victorious on the big end of the score which stood 4 to 2.

Carmichael of the local team showed some real class, putting the first goal on a nice individual rush. Gilling also came through with a solo counter in the last period putting in a wicked shot from the side which the Lacombe goalkeeper never even saw.

On Tuesday evening the Lacombe team came to Wetaskiwin to try and repeat after the manner of the Friday before. However, they ran up against a snag as the local boys were out to win, and win they did, the score, however being close, the Crystals emerging with a 2 to 1 victory.

Our big friend, the genial Somers, officiated in great style, and under his dictatorship everyone played hockey, no penalties were handed out, each and everyone of the players knowing that the referee meant what he said when he mentioned the fact that if they could not score the game was fast through the first two periods. No scoring was done during the first or second stanzas. Throughout these periods, the Lacombe goalie made saving after save, many of them being nothing short of sensational, with our boys hating in time after time and making him exert himself to the utmost.

During the third period the game became real spicy, each team feeling that if they could once score the moral of the other team would be broken. Inside of 5 minutes from the beginning of the play Gilling showed one in on a pass from Garlough. Within the next minute Lacombe evened up when they got a rebound from Robinson's pads. Things began to look interesting and everyone looked for an overtime match. However, Gilling and Ryan put the game on ice within five minutes of the first goal when Gilling making a neat rush up along the right side passed to Ryan who put a sizzler past Somers, the Lacombe goalie, who was unable to get in the way of the flying rocket. This was the last and winning goal. Lacombe came back with rush after rush but their attempts were fruitless, the final goal ringing with the score standing 2 to 1. It was during the latter part of this period that Robinson excelled himself.

On Saturday, January 20, Red Deer comes here for an exhibition game. This will be a fast game as Red Deer lost Lacombe on Lacombe's ice on Monday, January 15. On the following Tuesday, January 23, our boys entertain their old rivals, Leduc, whom they expect to take into camp again.

HOSPITAL AID CARD
PARTY A SUCCESS

A very large crowd attended the card party given by the Hospital Aid Card in the banquet room of the Driehol hotel on Tuesday evening of this week, and a very enjoyable time was spent. Five hundred was played until nearly midnight when a lunch was served. Those who desired then had an informal dance.

The prizes were won by Dr. N. A. Johnson and Ian Fraser and Mrs. D. Dierksen and Mrs. C. Thomas. The visitors from Lacombe who came up to attend the hockey game were guests of the society after the game. It is expected that the sum of about $500.00 will be added to the treasury.

Mrs. Cobbleick, of Calgary, is spending a few days visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Stevenson.

House of Dreams

Ethel surveyed her daintily laid table with distinct gratification. John, however, cast a swift look at the table and sighed.

"Why not put all the dinner on at once, Ethel? I hate to have you jump up and if I try to help you I usually go and spill something on that fool—I mean on the table," he amended, as her bright face clouded.

The shining mahogany table was one of her treasures, and the meals were invariably eaten—with a careful intensity lest a spot mar the dark surface. "I like to serve the food properly," she rebuked as she straightened an errant bread and butter plate.

The dinner consisted mostly of sweets. There was to be sure, a tiny white frosted chop apple, but John considered that hardly a mouthful. After the meal, which was constantly interrupted by Ethel's trips to the kitchen, he sat down in a rocker to read the paper. The chair had many slim splinters and an extremely hard surface. Presently he got up and tried another chair and before Ethel had finished folding doilies and replacing the silver vase that held three straight lilies on the gate-table, he reached for his hat.

"I believe I'll go down to the club a few minutes, hon. You see, Pats may be there, and—" he stopped, as he saw her face change. "Perhaps you'd like to go out with me?"

"Why, John, you know this is the evening I count the silver and arrange the best china. I couldn't possibly spare the time."

"Well, don't work too hard." His voice held a weary note, but Ethel, intent on a spot on a butter spreader, did not catch it. "If you are sleepy don't wait up for me." After a rather perfunctory kiss he made his escape.

Ethel arranged her silver in the velvet lined drawers and changed the positions of the best gold and white china and sat down to look over some recipes for a nut maple dessert. The sound of laughter in the adjacent next door finally aroused her to the fact that the evening had grown late and that she sat alone. "The Smiths seem to have such good times," she thought wistfully, "and Mrs. Smith doesn't fuss over her housekeeping a bit, says she thinks doilies all nonsense for daily use and never makes a whipped cream dessert. I think a wife ought to take a pride in her belongings and keep up her standards; but, somehow, John acts queerly; he looked at me tonight as though he wanted to say something and then hesitated. Mrs. Smith says that they nearly saved enough to start a home, but I don't see how she does it with everything so high. Why, meats cost so much! But she says they use many stews. I think chops much dirtier, and they can be garnished so much better. Then, too, her furniture isn't a bit pretty. The old-fashioned Morris chair right in the middle of the living room just spoils the effect." She was nearly asleep as she sat thinking when the telephone aroused her.

"I'm coming over for a few minutes," Ethel came her mother's voice. Ethel looked anxiously at her living room, for her mother was a notable housekeeper, although her methods were not the same as the bride's.

"Ethel, you have not had any trouble with John?" Mrs. Long looked nervous as she sat down heavily in the spindly rocker that creaked under her weight.

"Trouble? Of course not, why?" Mrs. Long meditated a moment. "Well, your father was at the club, and he saw John in the grill having dinner."

"John dined at home. I had clear bouillon, French lamb chops, potato chips, salad and jelly whip," replied Ethel proudly. "Father must have been mistaken."

"No, he was eating a thick steak with fried onions."

"Onions!" Ethel's manner displayed an astounded surprise. "How gross to eat stuff like that!"

"Ethel, you don't understand me. John is a big man and likes substantial food; the items you mentioned for dinner would not satisfy me."

"There is nothing to potato chips, bouillon is a mere beginning the sound of jelly whip is repugnant to most men, and I consider Frenched chops not only silly but extravagant. How can you expect to save when you buy such wasteful cuts of meat?"

"I suppose John nibbles at your dainties and gets up hungry."

"But the little bride was sobbing angrily the idea of going away from home to eat, just as if I didn't cook the hardest of dishes. The bouillon was from an old French cook book and the potato chips were soaked in lard water and dried in—"

"Take my advice," Mrs. Long continued, "and don't try to prepare elaborate meals. Better to have a few dishes and have plenty."

"Sometimes I think John doesn't care for nice serving. He hates to have me get up so often and he is so clumsy about getting spots on my beautiful table."

Mrs. Long laughed. "Why not get a thick silence-cloth and tablecloths for every day? Then you can eat more comfortably with no fear of marring the polish. The doilies are nice for luncheons—and after-the-theatre bites, but for general use I like a tablecloth," she reminded.

"Where is John, now? It is nearly eleven o'clock."

"He is at the club. Sometimes I feel really jealous of that club. The dues cost so much, and I don't always like to be alone."

"Why, don't you go for nice walks to the lake or to the park, Ethel?"

"I had to count the silver tonight and rearrange my best china."

"That's a mistake, too. Never too busy to go out with your husband. After a while he'll forget to ask you. Doesn't he talk any more about getting a cottage?"

"Sometimes, but this apartment is so terribly expensive that we cannot save much."

"If I were in your place, I'd cut down on everything and save." Mrs. Long's eyes travelled over the costly mahogany furniture and she looked uncomfortably in the hard chair. "The Warringtons are trying to get a furnished apartment and they are willing to pay a high bonus to get just what they want. Why don't you see what they would pay for this living room furniture? At the present prices you could get a good man and then have a comfortable place here. You could let them have the flat and move the rest of your stuff into one those fold up flats for a few months and get right down to saving. Personally I'd rather have two cheap Morris chairs with good cushions than all this art furniture. It is plain to be seen that you are not feeling John right and if you like I'll plan a few menus for you consisting of plain food that is easy to prepare."

"Mother, I believe you're right. John asked last night why we never had fried onions and I said they smelted up the apartment too much."

The two women talked awhile and Mrs. Long had her own way when John entered rather guiltily. "Ethel, I shouldn't have stayed so late, but the armchair at the club was so comfortable that I fell asleep reading and—"

Ethel had gotten out the portfolio of drawings they had worked over desultorily in their plans for a cottage. "John, mother has been over, and she thinks that we ought to save more and get our house of dreams started. We just talk about it without really getting on with it."

"You're right, then." John sat down gingerly in the frail chair beside the table. "I would do almost anything to get out farther, where you could have flowers and a good yard. A girl needs a place to expand in the fresh air."

Excitedly she unfolded the plan. "I've already phoned Nina Warrington. She is crazy to get into this building, and will buy all the mahogany furniture if you are willing to sell it."

"But, Ethel, I don't want you to give up what you are enjoying," he interrupted, thinking guiltily of his costly meal at the club.

"I thought of buying an overstuffed armchair and a Morris chair. That will be all we'll have room for in a fold-up. They will be more comfortable, anyway." She did not look up as she scribbled away at her budget, but she recalled her mother's criticism of the uncomfortable furniture.

"I find that by serving plainer meals I can reduce the house allowance materially. I'm going to start baking, instead of using store-bought goods."

Her heart beat at her affectionately. The bride that she had feared for her father's sake was developing into a regular helpmeet. According to the budget she had drawn up they would be ready to start their cottage the following spring.

"There is another item we can save on," he remarked, "you are not going to give up everything and pack your self into a tiny flat to rearrange without any help from me. If you'll promise not to do any housekeeping evenings, I'll give up the club and my cigars. That will save as much as the difference in rent."

A year later Ethel faced her husband at dinner. The fresh mouth curtains stirred in the rose-scented breeze from their garden.

John was busily filling his pipe from a tobacco jar at his elbow. "You are some cook, Ethel," he remarked contentedly, as he surveyed the empty pie plate before him; "that pie

A NEW MEANING

THE MAN WORTH WHILE

The man worth while is the honest man.
Honest in thought, in deed, in plain words.
Who speaks the truth where truth would serve;
Who scorns the false; who has real nerve;
Who will fight for a friend and walk a mile.
To serve him if need be once in a while.
Who measures his conduct from day to day,
With an eye to perfection rather than pay;
Who knows not deceit, nor hypocrisy's guile;
Who is eager to serve the world and smile.
Who is simple and frank and plain as well,
Who abhors a sham and is quick to tell
The fraudulent, canting, treacherous wight.
From the open, ingenious trusty knight,
Whose word is his bond, whenever given,
As good as fact, as though writ in heaven;
Who sees the whole truth in poetry writ,
Whose life work, indeed, is governed by it.
That "our nets are our angels of good or ill;
Our fatal shadows that walk by us still."
Who is "first in war" the same in peace;
Who's a power for right till wrong shall cease;
Who in face of calumny still can smile,
And be generous, too—that's the man worth while.

AN UNLEARNED LESSON

It so happens that two business firms are using the same space. The establishment is a very large one, and the location eminently desirable. The expense, however, of meeting the overhead of the entire place was more than the first firm felt like carrying during the recent business depression. Consequently they sought for some congenial individual and some non-conflicting business to take over half of the space, and to bear a proportionate part of the costs.

The two firms got along beautifully each one proving obliging, courteous and thoughtful as far as the other was concerned. In place of its being a drawback to have two men doing business in the same showroom—it was a distinct advantage, and everything went smoothly.

Then came the time when the first firm found it expedient to make a change. So they sold out their stock and another incoming firm took over the lease.

Of course the provisions of this lease gave the one who had rented half the establishment—a continuance of his rights, and this man expected that everything would run along smoothly as it had done before.

He put himself out to be accommodating and to help the newcomers to the city in every way in his power.

But the whole personnel of the place had changed. The new firm showed a distinct inclination to take every possible advantage. One of the salesmen would frequently come across to the side of the showroom held by the lessee, and when private matters were being discussed, would draw up a chair and proceed to listen or to interject remarks of his own.

Finally the young fellow who had sub-rented, became so exasperated that after a situation of this kind was over he turned to the older man and said:

"My dear sir, I'm younger than you are, but I'm wondering just the same what kind of home-training you had as a child. Didn't your mother teach you something in the way of good manners regarding the right to privacy of the people about you?"

"If you were transacting business with a man I should not think of coming near you and should take pains to keep out of hearing distance."

"The other day I left some papers on my desk, and when I came back I found that you were looking them over. On several occasions you have come and looked over my shoulder when I was writing. I hesitated to show resentment, but it annoyed me exceedingly."

"We are both tied up here on lease contracts and we might as well understand how matters stand in the interests of harmony. I expect and demand such business privacy as is legitimate and right. I shall not interfere with what you are doing or pry into affairs which are none of my concern, and I shall expect that you will extend to me equal courtesy and consideration."

"And what if I do not do it?" asked the salesman from the other side.

"I shall not retaliate," said the young man pleasantly, "but I shall have my lawyer secure for me legal protection. This will be unpleasant for both of us, but if your lesson must come in this manner, it is your fault and not mine."

"Yesterday my safe door was open, and you went along and looked in. You did not touch anything but you made remarks which betrayed your interest. A word to the wise is sufficient."

This situation is not an imaginary one but actual, and the ultimate solution is not yet worked out.

The point to be made in this connection is that children should be taught the right to privacy of those about them.

Even with the family, they should not feel at liberty to enter a closed door without rapping; to read a letter belonging to someone else; to handle papers, books or records left by someone who has been called out of the room; to open a letter addressed to someone else; to stay with in hearing without invitation when a private conversation is being conducted, or in a thousand and one other ways to be forgetful of the rights of the people about them.

Children should be taught that good manners demand consideration for others.

If John and his mother go to call on Mrs. Brown and a second caller comes while they are there, John and his mother will chat pleasantly a while, and will then withdraw, for it may be that the newcomer has private business to discuss. If John and his mother are guests in the house of Mrs. Brown they will of course withdraw while callers arrive unless invited to remain.

A great deal of family and business friction is caused by the failure to observe these refinements of daily conduct. Teach the children while they are little, the reason for distinctions of this kind and require that of the factors. Then when they grow older and mingle with people in business and community life, they will not offend and bore others by their cruddy and annoying ways.

TRADE CONDITIONS OF CANADA REVIEWED

Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, at the annual meeting of the shareholders, held a few days ago, analyzed the foreign trade figures for the fiscal year, and pointed out that the decreases in a number of items represented a collapse in trade which had now passed. Reviewing the crop situation, he remarked that in view of the magnificent total yield the returns were disappointingly low. At a figure of over $984,000,000 they compared very favorably however with the average for the five years before the war, namely about $450,000,000. "We used to look forward," he continued, "to the possibility of a billion dollars, as a magnificent return from our field crops and the question as to whether it is so still depends on the cost of production. The war and its prosperity have in every branch of industry upset this cost, but they also upset our point of view as to the returns we may look for from our efforts. We have had to face a tremendous adjustment of values, of which farmers have certainly had to bear their share and in consequence have had heavy debts to meet as a result of the losses of recent years, which can only be paid from the profits or from the savings of the future. This may mean, in some cases harder work, a narrower standard of comfort and smaller holdings of land, but the Canada we are so proud of today was built in that manner."

Referring to the condition of the live stock industry and the recent removal of the British cattle embargo, Sir Edmund expressed his belief that the best opening in the British market was for beef, rather than for store cattle, and pointed out the advantages which the Canadian breeder and packer enjoyed over his competitor in the Argentine, on account of the quicker shipment and the superiority of beef from grain-fed Canadian cattle. He also pointed out that common sense would tend to make the United States reconsider its unfavorable tariff, since only one head of Canadian cattle was marketed in the U.S. as against twenty in Canada, and since the decreased purchasing power of the Canadian farmers would be reflected in decreased purchases from the United States.

The president reviewed the mining situation, commenting on the marked increase in the output of gold, Ontario alone producing more than California. Canada was in fact no longer being considered solely as an agricultural country, but as also possessing rich mineral resources which were only beginning to be exploited with scientific thoroughness.

He also spoke on the need of adopting an immigration and land policy that would assist the newcomers by giving them practical guidance and advice, and praised the work already done by the Soldier Settlement board. On the subject of general immigration, however, it was necessary to take into account the requirement of the factories as a steady supply of unskilled labor was essential to the industries of this continent.

The worst blizzard of the winter struck the Brandon, Man., district on Wednesday last with the result that country roads were blocked, drifts were several feet high in the district and travel in the country will be hard going for several days.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL PLACE I HAVE EVER VISITED

The following essay was composed by Lillian Hanna, of Grade IX, of the Wetaskiwin High School:

The very thought of my first trip out to camp, makes me wish I were there at present.

The first vision that brings my memory there is the sight of any beautiful scenery. Near our camp was a deep, long, narrow, and clean basin of water surrounded by green trees that seemed to have been planted along the lake bank. The banks were so thickly wooded, that anyone going through them, and not acquainted with the place, would immediately be lost. In through the forest were different shrubbery thickly covered with moss at its base. Sometimes running over the green bed of moss were ferns and sprigs. These springs contained the purest and liveliest water I have ever tasted. Others who have visited the springs give the same remark. Near this lake was a saw-mill which overlooked the hills around, making it appear as though it were the land of the fairies.

ATTY. GENERAL IS GETTING READY TO RECEIVE PETITION

Attorney General Brownlee is getting prepared to act on the petition which it is stated will be presented to the legislature asking for beer and light wines. According to the act regarding direct legislation, the regulations state that the petition must be examined by an officer of the department appointed for that purpose, and which in the case of the last petition was examined by a committee appointed for the purpose. The committee or officer reports to the house and before the bill can be considered by the legislature, a certificate must be submitted by the attorney general that the proposed bill is, in his opinion, within the legislative jurisdiction of the legislature and further as to whether he believes it will be any charge upon the public revenue.

Mr. Brownlee has received a copy of the act and it is being considered by the solicitors of his department so that the certificate may be ready by the time the house opens.

The petition must be in the first place, have the signatures of twenty per cent of the total votes polled at the last general provincial election, also there must be signatures from eighty-five per cent of the constituencies, equal to eight per cent of the votes polled in these constituencies. The petition should be presented within ten days of the opening of the legislature, but the rules may be waived for its receipt until ten days after the opening. It is an offence against the house to sign another person's name on this list, and the petition must according to the regulations be presented by a member of the house.

NOT WORTH THE MONEY

A colored man took out a marriage license. A few days later he went back and asked the clerk to substitute another woman's name for the one on the license, as he had changed his mind. He was told that it would cost him another dollar and a half.

"You mean I got to get another new license?"

"Yes," said the clerk.

The applicant was silent for a few minutes, thinking hard. Then he said with an air of determination, "Never mind, boss, this of one will do. That ain't a dollar and a half difference 'twixt them two, now."

SWINE BREEDERS DISSATISFIED WITH GRADING SYSTEM

Grading of swine was the topic of considerable discussion at the meeting of the executive of the Alberta Swine Breeders' association held at the exhibition offices on Friday. According to the statements, the grading of swine at the stockyards and packing plants has yet to be got down to a proper basis, and it was promised that the matter will be dealt with fully at the annual meeting of the association. This was fixed for the afternoon of March 11. Manager Stark was requested to invite C. Hane of Calgary, and Professor Carlyle to address the members of the association on the occasion. W. J. Hoover, chairman, was chosen as the associate director to represent the association on the exhibition association board.

The annual dinner will take place on the night of March 13, and Manager Stark was asked to prepare the program.

Those present at the meeting were W. J. Hoover, in the chair; W. Gilbert L. Rye, and C. P. Wilson—Journal.

ALBERTA SEEKS AMENDMENTS TO THE MINES ACT

Medicine Hat, Jan. 13.—The Alberta Federation of Labor at its concluding session yesterday, decided to ask the government for an amendment to the Mines act to establish a six-hour day with a five-day week, Saturday to be a holiday and no workman to be underground for more than six hours during any consecutive twenty-four hours. It is asked, also, that first aid stations be established inside the mines at places accessible at all times during working hours, and that a minimum scale of wages be established by law, covering all coal mines in Alberta.

The federation granted an honorarium of $300 to President Wheatley. The annual convention of the Alberta branch of the Canadian Labor party was held yesterday morning and officers elected as follows: Pres. Geo. Laffan, Edmonton; vice president, H. J. Pallet, Edmonton; secretary, R. E. Owens, Edmonton.

4 ECLIPSES INCLUDED IN PHENOMENA OF HEAVENS THIS YEAR

Phenomena of the heavens for the year will include four eclipses as well as occupation of the planet Venus which will take place Saturday morning when it will be occulted by the moon in the crescent phase as a repelling object in the eastern sky for several hours before sunrise. It will reach its greatest distance west of the sun February 4, rising three hours before the sun, but after that date its angular distance from the sun will decrease although it will continue to be visible in the east at dawn until shortly before it comes into conjunction with the sun September 10. From that time until the end of the year it will be in the western sky after sunset.

A second astronomical event of exceptional interest during the year is the total eclipse of the sun visible in California and Mexico September 10. There will be in all four eclipses in 1923, two of the sun and two of the moon. March 17 there will be an annual eclipse of the sun visible in the extreme southern part of South America, the south Atlantic ocean and South Africa. The total eclipse occurring September 10, will be visible in its partial phase over all of North America and the northwestern part of South America. Partial eclipses of the moon will occur about March 2 and August 26, both being visible in all North America with the exception of the extreme northeast and northwest.

FINE CONCERT AT EAST BITTERN LAKE SCHOOL SPLENDIDLY RECEIVED

An event which will live long in the memories of the patrons and friends of the East Bitter Lake school took place during the Christmas season, when a school concert for in advance of the usual school Christmas entertainment, was presented by the pupils under the direction of the teacher, Miss Dorothy Ward. Every item in the three-hour program showed Miss Ward's ability to bring out the best talent of the young people in her charge from the kindergarten age to the 7th grade. There was a program consisting of drills, dialogues, impersonations, music, both vocal and instrumental, and recitations. The singing of the clubs received special comment as did "Snow Ball". Every number was received with enthusiasm by the crowded house. All felt that it was good to live in a province that sends out teachers as efficiently trained as Miss Ward. The ladies served a midnight lunch—Canadian.

A CANNY COLLIE

We hope that Ernest Harold Baynes will see this anecdote, as it matches one he made public not long ago about a dog of his own. A Scotchman was in the habit of giving his collie a penny to buy a bun for himself, and was surprised one evening to see the dog return without his usual purchase. Thinking he must have lost the penny, his master gave him another, but again the dog returned without the bun. "There's something strange in this," said the Scotchman. "I'll go and investigate." So he went to the shop, the dog followed him. When they reached the place, the dog showed great delight and by his actions directed his master's attention to the shop window. There he had the prize, a printed card of "each—1 for 3d."

COMMUNICATION

(We do not necessarily endorse the sentiments advanced by this or any other correspondent under this heading.—Ed.)

Editor, Wetaskiwin Times:

Dear Sir: Here we are again, 1923, and everything working smoothly. The city council has held its inaugural meeting and the several committees, led by the Honorable the Minister of Finance, have got away to a good start. The school board, that great educational institution whose harmonious existence was in such grave danger of being upset last fall by Mr. Power, the G.O.M. of Wetaskiwin, the savior of all things educational, is still in operation and the harmony which came so near being ruptured is now running higher and smoother than ever.

The Grand Old Man plods along to the Post Office daily still mulling the same old song, that all the teachers employed are Presbyterians instead of Methodists. Even the new caretaker is of that denomination. It is also that married women with good sound, able husbands should never be engaged as teachers (sang to the air of Tipperary), while the chorus is, higher government grants, higher fees to children from outside districts and more discipline in the schools for every solemn expression must be worn while singing the choros.

This is a glorious world, Mr. Editor, but why are some people so dissatisfied with present economic conditions?

Yours truly

A Glorious Ratepayer

25,000 British Settlers

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—The dominion government has approved plans submitted by Commissioner David C. Lamb, international secretary of the Dominion Army, for the settlement in Canada of 25,000 young women, youths and children to be selected in the British Isles. This decision is the outcome of conferences which have been held between Commissioner Lamb and Hon. Charles Stewart, acting minister of immigration and colonization, and other members of the government. In a statement given out at midnight, Commissioner Lamb announced the agreement reached.

"The army has secured the cooperation of the overseas settlement commission of the British government as well as that of the Dominion government in its project," said Commissioner Lamb. "The agreement now arrived at is the first of its kind concluded in the interests of Canada under the Empire Settlement Act. A new and interesting feature of the work involves the provision made for giving the youths a short intensive course of education and training on the Army's farms in England. The selection of young women will start at once, and the first of the army's conduct parties will sail early in March."

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE

The next high school debate for the provincial championship will take place on Friday afternoon of next week when the Wetaskiwin teams will meet representatives from Edmonton high school in the semi-final. The subject of the debate is resolved, that Oriental Immigration should be excluded from Canada. An invitation is extended to the public to attend.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A foot comfort demonstrator, specially trained in Dr. Scholls' Foot Comfort methods, will be at the Star Store on February 2nd and 3rd. If you have foot troubles of any kind this announcement will interest you.

Foot Comfort service free. Be sure and take advantage of this free service. Come in and see us at any time and make an appointment.

Impersonation, fine and deportment were all included in the sentence imposed by Magistrate Sanders on Wong Poy, a Chinese, in the police court on Thursday, when he pleaded guilty to having cocaine in his possession. He was sentenced to a year's imprisonment and included a fine of $200 and costs with an option of an additional six months. After the sentence has completed his full term he will be deported from Canada.

Blairstown, Jan. 12.—Charles Worth, 55, and his son Edwin, 22, both of Bellevue, are dead as the result of murder and suicide on the part of the father, according to information gathered by provincial police officers. The Worths were coal miners, living at what is known as the Dairy Ranch, outside the town, and for some time both had been acting queerly. It is stated,

Edmonton Postmaster Is Charged With Theft

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—George S. Armstrong, postmaster at Edmonton post office, appeared before Magistrate Primrose in the police court today on a charge of the theft of $500 in August 1919, and on application of Sydney B. Woods, K.C., was given an adjournment until January 19.

After careful consideration Magistrate Primrose set bail at $40,000, with two or more securities. Mr. Woods secured four citizens willing to give the necessary sureties, and Mr. Armstrong was released at 11 a.m.

While drilling for water the Meadow Creek Co. went through a 50 foot seam of coal at a depth of 70 feet, then two feet of clay and another seam of coal measuring 14 feet. The samples are No. 1, and confirms the belief that the Red Deer river coal seam extended right to Alx where a grade as good or better than anything produced at the river would be found.—Alx Free Press.

Railway News

Toronto.—It is announced that Mr. G. S. Beer, C. E. R. R. agent, agent, under District Passenger Agent William Fulton, has been appointed to the post of assistant district passenger agent. Mr. Fulton now has two assistants in his territory.

Medicine Hat, Alberta.—An expenditure of about $12,000 is now being made by the Canadian Pacific Railway company in the construction of the company's new coal handling plant, and that sum is about equally divided between the two improvements. In both instances the work has given much employment to local men and there is still a considerable amount of work to be done in connection with the completion of the improvements.

Kenilworth, Ontario.—Mr. E. M. Williams, Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive engineer, in an effort to his regular duties, time over of the flower garden which attracts so much favorable notice of the neighbors over the line, has secured another triumph. Mr. Williams has been awarded a special prize in the Quebec district, all of the great gardens having been recently judged by an official of the race. During the past few years Mr. Williams has carried a number of first prizes but the competition is growing keener year by year.

St. Thomas, Ontario.—Work has been commenced on the construction of an extension to the present C.P.R. yards east of the city, in the form of an 800-foot repair track at an expenditure of approximately $15,000. The grading work which is being done by Irvin and Son of the city, was started recently. The extension is necessary to cope with the increased business and also to facilitate the repairing of cars. It is also understood that the addition of the new tracks will result in several more employees being added to the C.P.R. yard staff.

A small track about 80 feet long will also be erected alongside the new tracks to be used in case of an emergency. The new yard will be at least fifty cars. Four times about twenty men are engaged in running the work to completion.

Belfast, Ireland.—For the first time in the history of the C.P.R. a steamer sailed from Belfast Harbor conveying mails direct from the North coast of Ireland to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's S.S. "Metagama," which, incidentally, was built in Belfast. The vessel sailed on Jan. 22nd, and carried 21 tons of mail, together with some 100 emigrants from Ulster, conveyed to it by the British Commissioners' tug "Mugrave."

It is also the intention to send the mail to Liverpool and other ports, from which they were despatched, but acting on instructions from the secretary of the Post Office in London, the present system was introduced.

One of the passengers was a five-year-old child, from Dublin, whose parents are in Canada. The little one was in charge of a patron who handed it over to the mother of the "Metagama."

A Belfast "Telegraph" representative was shown over the "Metagama," and saw something of the excellent arrangements made for the comfort of passengers.

London, England.—Major A. Ewan Moore, London Manager of the C.P.R. Department of Colonization and Development, 65-65, Chancery Lane, has received the following letter from their Brussels office: "Dear Sir:—I beg to advise that a certain Mr. Martin, Avenue des Coeurs, Bruxelles, who has formerly resided in Canada, brought over by the line a number of plants, which were an exhibition of land products was held on Sunday at 215, Avenue des Coeurs, and Irish Cobblers. His crop amounted to over 300 lbs. of potatoes, 2 cwt. of onions, one potato weighing well over 2 lbs. This particular plant has been sent to us for window display and has attracted a great deal of attention. Mr. Martin has 400,000 kilos of Canadian potatoes in Belgium which are not to be sold for immediate consumption but only for reproduction.—Yours truly, (Signed) C. DE MEY, Agent."

MILLET

Rev. A. Murphy, M.A., will give an address on Thursday night instead of on Friday evening.

The numbers are as follows: Belgian school of Cavalry at Ypres; the Water Beetle, a very fine nature study. Four reel production "Enoch Arden." Travel Film "In Old Quebec." Comedy, animated cartoon "The Swimming Pool."

The Ladies' Aid Society are holding a Silver Social in the parlour on January 24.

Don't forget the monthly Old-time dance in the community hall, Friday February 2. Admission 50c per couple, extra girl 25c. No charge for supper if ladies bring cake or sandwiches. Come and enjoy the evening.

The Millet Institute held their first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. J. Dowling. Not all the members were present but those who were there thoroughly enjoyed the meeting. It was decided not to put on the promised concert, at least not just at present, but instead to have a series of card parties. The first will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Wood on January 24. A very pretty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mesdames Inglis, Dinney and Esterbrook.

The Times has accepted the agency for one of the best lines of art calendars ever seen in the west, and we would be glad to show samples to anyone interested. These calendars are made in Canada, and the prices are very moderate. Do not place your order before seeing our lines. Buy at home and keep the money in the community.

THE NEW COURSE OF STUDIES FOR ALBERTA PUBLIC SCHOOLS

(By a Teacher)

Perhaps the first point that will strike the reader of this section of the new course is the re-alignment of the subjects (or branches of education) formerly separated under the two headings "History" and "Civics". Two criticisms were directed at the old arrangement. In the first place there was a strong tendency to separate History from Civics, and the study or development of Citizenship tended to become a more or less uninteresting study of methods and details of government. Nowhere in the course do we find such evidence of a new idea—a new point of view—as is found in this section. With "Civics" boxed in a separate section of the time table and studied from a text book "all by itself" there was a real danger of our accepting the knowledge of the details of legislation and the history of parliament as a mark of good citizenship. The new course steers us away from such a false attitude. Citizenship—right citizenship—is not a body of knowledge; it is an attitude of mind.

The aims of the course are well worth setting out in detail. These are three of them:

1.—"To refine the children's social life in school groups by encouraging them to practice helpfulness, sympathy, tolerance, justice, etc."

2.—"To cultivate the natural tendencies of children to obtain citizenship experience—tendencies to likemindedness, to group effort, to co-operation, to corporate life."

Here in this second aim is found the truly "educative" attitude of mind. The aim is not the building up of a group of memorized facts—it is the cultivation of a tendency towards certain ends. Further, the author frankly accept the tendency towards such desirable ends as natural to the child. It is in the nature of man to act in likeminded cooperation with his fellows. So says the aim (in effect if not in words). Whatever political cynics may argue to the contrary here is a breath of fresh air in the ingenuously directed into a (formerly) dry and dusty atmosphere.

The third aim is a continuation of the others: "To provide suitable work life activities in class room and school as a medium through which the experience obtained in family and play group will take form and meaning in accordance with what is implied in living as an adult member of organized communities." Briefly shall we say to give in the school a group experience that shall carry over to adult life.

Of equal interest to this statement of aim is the section or methods of teaching—i.e. of cultivating the tendency. Two methods are suggested—the direct and the indirect. The former consists in "turning to profitable account all the many social situations of school life as they ordinarily occur." (Of this perhaps more will be said later). The indirect method consists in "the study of history, literature, supplementary reading, etc." Here we catch again that broader vision and changed attitude desired and expressed in other parts of the course. History is not a subject heldly displayed itself under its exclusive heading. It is not an end in itself—but a means to an end—and that end definitely stated: Citizenship. In further extension of this idea the authors of the course set out in a few terse paragraphs the guiding principle to be followed in the "reformation of the public school course in history." After a brief summary of the present generation (which ideals have been brought to a focus by the great European war) it is pointed out that the historical knowledge that is serviceable to the ordinary citizen today is that which has to do with the main developments behind such an epoch-making event as the great war. That statement might well be printed in bold type on the title page of the curriculum, for it shows how completely we are shaking off ideas and methods that have naught to recommend them save their age. It tells us in no uncertain language that the authors live not in the dim and dusty atmosphere of classic antiquity but rather in the second decade of the twentieth century.

Liquor Law Enforcement

According to a recent statement by Commissioner E. S. Bishop, there is a certain amount of confusion in the public mind regarding responsibility for the enforcement of the liquor laws. This is explained by the commissioner as follows:

Throughout the province as a whole outside cities and larger towns, responsibility rests with the Alberta Provincial Police. In connection with this force, there is organized a special liquor squad, in order to increase the efficiency in this branch of their duty.

In cities and towns this responsibility rests with the municipal police and civic authorities. This arrangement between provincial and municipal authorities was made mainly in the interests of economy and to prevent unnecessary overlapping. The ultimate responsibility for the maintenance of all law and order, however in urban and rural municipalities alike, rests with the attorney general, and he may, if circumstances justify it, utilize provincial police within a municipality.

Prosecution of Stills

In the case of illicit manufacture by means of stills, or "moonshining," these offences come under the Inland Revenue Act, which is a federal law. Responsibility, therefore, for detecting, prosecuting and punishing offenders of this class rests with the Dominion government officials, such as Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and officers of the department of inland revenue, whose instructions come from Ottawa. In order, however, to deal more effectively with this kind of offence, which is one of the most prevalent and troublesome form of violation of liquor laws, special arrangements have been made with the department of the Attorney General of Alberta, and the department of inland revenue, Ottawa, whereby some twenty-five Alberta provincial police have been duly appointed special officers of the department of inland revenue. These men have been carefully stationed throughout the province in order to make their services available where necessary. Co-operating as they do with all provincial police officers and inland revenue officers, there has been a marked increase in the efficiency of the joint force in dealing with this abuse.

This division of responsibility between municipal, provincial and the federal police forces, if better understood would help the public to understand the conditions under which these laws are enforced. There is a greater degree of cooperation today than ever before between all officials concerned in securing results, and this improvement will, no doubt, be more manifest in the future.

Railway Work to Proceed

Following the completion of negotiations between the provincial government and the Union Bank, managers of the McArthur railway interests in Alberta, it will now be possible to proceed with the extension of lines in the Peace River and Grande Prairie districts, and some of the work will be started next spring. It is announced by Premier Greenfield. Extensions are planned on the Canada Central line from Bertha to Watrous, bridge district, and to the E.D. & B.C. railway from Grande Prairie for about 15 miles.

Scholarships in Agriculture

President E. W. Beatty, of the C.P.R. has awarded a full course in agriculture at the Alberta agricultural schools to the four prize winners of the Young Farmers' Club of Great Britain.

New Associate Professor

R. D. Sinclair is the new associate professor of animal husbandry at the university of Alberta agricultural college. He is a graduate of the Alberta university.

The Wheat Board

Satisfactory progress toward a solution of the wheat board question, was made at a conference of the western premiers held in Winnipeg last week.

Rainfall in the South

A rather heavy fall of rain was reported from the Lethbridge district on January 10. Mild weather has been prevailing over the entire province for the past few weeks. From Lethbridge to the mountains the rain was heavy, water running down the curbs at Lethbridge.

Technical Institute Opened

The new provincial technical institute at Calgary was officially opened on Friday last, when Lieutenant Governor Brett and members of the Alberta cabinet were present.

Confer with Mortgage Men

A conference with representatives of mortgage and loan companies of the province, and representatives of farm organizations, with members of the Alberta cabinet, was held in Calgary on Friday last when farm loans and other matters were discussed.

Opening of Legislature

The opening of the legislature will take place on Thursday, January 23. From present indications it is not expected that the session will be a lengthy one. The first bill of the session was filed with the clerk of the house last week, being a private bill to incorporate the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts.

Butter Makers Course

A short course for butter makers has been in progress at the Alberta university under the auspices of the department of agriculture and the university. A class of a dozen or more creamery workers from different points in the province, is in attendance.

ANALYZING LIGHT OF A STAR

There are many ways in which a knowledge of the stars is obtained, and one of these will be briefly sketched in this article. It is the method of breaking up the light from a star and studying the tell-tale marks in its spectrum, as the analyzer light is called. The instrument which analyzes the star's light is called a spectroscopic, and it is not too much to say, perhaps, that its invention has done almost as much for astronomy as has the telescope. The latter brings distant objects optically nearer and enables us to determine their positions and in the case of the sun, the moon and the planets, to study their form and surface markings. The spectroscopic, on the other hand, enables us to study the light itself, and to learn of the chemical composition and physical condition of the body emitting the light. Furthermore, the spectrum enables us to measure the rate of the star's motion towards or away from us, and, strange as it may seem, it contains the secret of how fast the light has actually travelled to reach us.

A source of light such as a star radiates out energy in waves of an almost infinite number of lengths. The particular ones which concern us here are those giving us the sensation of light, whose lengths lie roughly between 1,700,000 and 1,330,000 of an inch, the former corresponding to violet, and the latter to red light. All of these waves travel through space at the same velocity, namely, 186,000 miles a second, and reach us bundled together in the point image of a star. The function of a spectroscopic is to take this confused mass of rays and sort them out, placing them side by side in their proper positions. An analogy which has sometimes been used seemed to be a fair one. If all the books in a large library were thrown together in a disorderly, compact pile, in the centre of a room, we could say but little concerning the contents and characteristics of that library. The spectrum of a star is as the same library when the books are classified and arranged on the shelves in complete perfection and simplicity, so that at a glance one can appraise its contents at any or all points.

The method most commonly used in separating the rays one from another is to pass the light through a prism of glass. Light travels more slowly through glass than air, and moreover, there is a gradual lessening of the speed as we pass from the red to the violet rays. Thus a pencil of light consisting of all wave lengths, from the longer red ones to the shorter violet ones, will undergo a sorting out process during its passage through the prism of glass, and instead of the point we have a band of light, red at one end and violet at the other. From this spectrum, whether looked at visually or photographed upon a plate, as is the usual custom, we derive our information.

A negative reproduction thus shows the spectrum of iron vapor to consist of isolated bright lines. These always occur at the same position in the spectrum and serve as useful mileposts to survey the unknown star spectrum placed between them on the photographic plate. We note that the star spectrum is composed of numerous dark lines (bright on the reproduction) whose positions can be accurately determined with respect to the lines of the iron standard. If the star were not approaching us at a very rapid rate the whole spectrum would be moved to the right a small amount and then opposite each iron line we would see a corresponding one in the star spectrum. This line for line correspondence is taken to indicate that iron in the form of vapor is present in that star's atmosphere, absorbing those particular rays of light.

spectrum has occurred, one has to remember that the waves issuing from a source of light will, in effect, all be shortened if the source is coming towards us. Consequently the corresponding spectrum lines will all move bodily over to the region of shorter wave lengths by an amount proportional to the velocity of approach of the star. An analogy in the case of sound can be given. If we are standing beside a railway track as a fast express is whistling as it thunders by, we will find that the pitch of the note emitted when the train is approaching is higher than when it is receding. The corresponding lines in the sound waves crowded upon each other, thereby shortening their length, and raising the pitch, while the opposite holds true for the train as it recedes from us.

Most of the stars when examined from time to time in this way show a constant velocity; but about one in every three or four is found to vary in velocity. Observations on one night may indicate that the star is receding from our solar system, while on another night they will indicate that it is approaching. The inference drawn is that the star is revolving about another one. In short, that we are dealing with a double, rather than a single star. If observations are continued for a sufficient interval of time the period of such revolution can be determined, and much other information deduced from the velocity variations. The periods of these spectroscopic binaries, as they are called, vary from those of a few hours, when the stars are almost in contact, to those whose periods are reckoned in years and whose separations are of the order of several millions of miles. Thus the rhythmic movement to and fro of the lines in the spectrum carries us back to the revolution of a bright star about an invisible companion whose presence would not otherwise be revealed, even by the most powerful of telescopes.

Foot Saved
in 4 Days!

"Nothing but Zam-Buk could have done it," says Mrs. A. Perryman, 110, John Street, North, Hamilton, in describing how her right foot, crushed by a wagon wheel, was loosened. "The foot was terribly bruised, thickened and inflamed, and I fainted away with pain. When it was so sore and swollen I could not move about, my husband's foot was in my shoe. I was surprised and amazed when I saw the advertisement of Zam-Buk. I bought a box and used it. In four days, through this timely use of Zam-Buk, I could get about as usual; the injured foot was thoroughly healed. Zam-Buk is the most powerful anti-septic healer which quickly frees the skin of corruption and disease and grows new healthy tissue. No common ointment or salve can possibly compare with Zam-Buk. Edmonton Citizen Gives Full Credit to Tanlac for His Recovery after Year of Misery

Proof of the lasting quality of the relief to be derived from the use of Tanlac is multiplied daily. One of the latest to testify along this line is Joseph Groat, well known citizen of Edmonton, Alberta, residing at 9256 110th Ave.

"I took Tanlac three years ago and it sure did me a world of good," he declared. "I had been suffering terribly for a year from stomach trouble and disordered kidneys. My appetite fell off to nothing, and what little I did force myself to eat disagreed with me and brought on awful attacks of indigestion. Pains, stiffness and soreness in the small of the back kept me in misery, and I was so badly run down that I couldn't hit a lick of work."

"My wife read so much about Tanlac she finally got me started on it, and it soon put me on my feet again and gave me power to work. My appetite is wonderful, the pains in my back have disappeared, and I am simply feeling fine. I think Tanlac is a great medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY FOR FOUR YEARS WITH HEART TROUBLE

Of late years heart trouble has become very prevalent, and we know of no remedy that will do so much to make the heart regain its strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy normal condition as will Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

Miss Jean D. Phillips, St. Catharines, N.Y., writes: "I suffered terribly, for four years, with heart trouble. If I would walk fast or go up stairs my heart would beat very fast, and I would get tired very quickly. I tried different remedies, but could not find anything that seemed to do me any good. One of my neighbors advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and I certainly received good results. I can truthfully say I owe my life to them, and I would highly recommend them to anyone who is troubled with heart trouble."

SHRINKAGE IN STORED HAY

Almost every buyer of baled hay has felt either annoyed or elated at finding the actual weight of the bale that he has purchased either more or less than the tagged weight. Of course the popular opinion is that the actual weight of the bale is more often less than it is more than the tagged weight. There is some truth in both of this connection but often no injustice in holding down the person who buys a bale of hay which actually weighs a very few pounds less than the tagged weight that has been put on.

Let us consider just what shrinkage consists of and when the greatest amount of it occurs. The making of hay from the freshly cut forage plants consists chiefly in the reduction of the moisture content from approximately 65 per cent to 75 per cent, to from 12 to 1 per cent. When the newly cured hay is stored in the barn or stack it goes through a process that is generally termed "sweating" during which process still further moisture is lost. Of course we have other changes going on as well but the thing I wish to bring out is that shrinkage in weight during the whole process of curing hay consists almost entirely in the loss of water and not in food constituents. If only properly cured hay has been baled no alarm or annoyance should be felt, as a small variation from the original tagged weight. This variation is water and not food material and the bale has just as high feeding value as when first put up and weighed.

By properly cured hay is meant hay that has been properly handled previous to being put in the barn and has subsequently gone through the sweating process which is normally ended in about a month after storage.

There are cases, however, where hay is baled before going through the entire curing process. In such instances the original bale does not contain all of the food constituents that it should because of the excess moisture it carries. The shrinkage in such hay does represent a loss that the buyer has a legitimate right to complain of. The looseness of the binding wires often indicates hay baled before being properly cured and where this occurs the buyer is well advised to check up all tag weights and if possible buy only actual weight at time of delivery.

Where hay either loose or in bales is bought according to weight at the time of delivery, the last cent in value can be obtained by purchasing it after a long dry period. To the seller of hay the reverse would hold, the greatest weight of a given quantity of cured hay being after a prolonged period of damp weather. As both the buyer and seller cannot be accommodated at the same time in this matter the fairest thing to do is What is Blood Pressure?

One of the very important points in the medical examination of patients for life insurance, in fact, in all of the most important subjects in medicine, is blood pressure. What is blood pressure? Blood pressure is the barometer of the mechanical functioning of the body organs. It is the effect of the myriads of vessels, which, as constant, administer to our bodies the necessary blood, and late hours, overwork, worry, and other causes which disturb its equilibrium.

While its exact significance may not be determined in each specific instance, the medical profession as a whole admits the importance of blood pressure and insurance companies have proved that it is a factor of the utmost importance in estimating the expectancy of life. The relation of blood pressure to health is fundamental, for the circulation of the blood involves the same physical laws which govern the flow of fluid—whether in the body or out of it. Without pressure there would be no circulation and without circulation there would be no life.

As the story of blood pressure is read through the action of the heart let us consider the daily work of the normal healthy heart. The human heart beats normally in the average person 72 times a minute, 144,000 times a day, 33,000,000 times a year. At every stroke about 10 cubic inches of blood are forced into the body, 1,000,000 cubic inches a day. In terms of work this is the equivalent of raising one ton to the height of 82 feet every twenty-four hours; and yet that little pump is only about the size of your fist. How far could you put in a one ton truck, on a gasoline engine that you could put in your pocket? Stop and think it over. There is one incontrovertible fact: Abnormally high blood pressure if persistent is evidence of present or impending degeneration and a danger signal which cannot be ignored in the life insurance business. It is generally conceded that a man's physical condition cannot be measured with precision after he is 45, without a blood pressure reading, no matter how well he feels.

"Can you tell me what kind of weather we may expect next month?" wrote a farmer to the editor of his home paper, and his reply followed: "It is my belief that the weather for next month will be very much like your subscription bill." The farmer wondered for an hour what the editor was driving at when he happened to think of the word "unsettled."

For the producer to see that only thoroughly cured hay is baled and for the consumer to accept the tag weight is of such hay knows that he is getting the food value he is paying for.—Experimental Farm Note.

W. C. T. U.

The World's W.C.T.U. convention recently held in Philadelphia, was attended by 2000 delegates. The afternoon and evening sessions were held in the academy of music, the seating capacity of which was 3,500, with everyone paying $3.00 for a seat and hundreds turned away. The enthusiasm was an inspiration.

Miss Agnes Slack, the world's secretary, read a letter from Dr. Herod stating: "It is quite rare a meeting of the World's W.C.T.U. will be held at one of the early days of the International Congress in Copenhagen, as a part of the official congress program."

On Sunday afternoon a wonderful memorial service was conducted in memory of Rosalind, Countess of Carlisle, Lady Henry Somerset, Pandita Ramabai (India), and others. Miss Gordon, world's president, presided.

An outstanding feature of the convention were speeches by representatives from Burma, Japan, Ceylon, China, Korea, Australia, New Zealand, Canada (from the Atlantic to the Pacific), Newfoundland, South America, Egypt, Germany, Denmark, Great Britain, Ireland. Special addresses were given by Miss Sara Graham Mulhally, formerly first deputy commissioner of New York State narcotic drug control, Professor Chamberlain of Columbia university, who represented the international narcotic drug control league, and many other notable speakers, including Major Roy Haines and Dr. Cherrington, who made important statements regarding the increased enforcement of the prohibition law in the U.S.

An interesting feature of the convention was the wide spread interest shown by prominent religious and social organizations of the U.S.A.

The program of activities, 1922-23 was adopted as follows: Total Abstinence—The permanent abolition of alcoholic customs and the liquor trade in every country must be built upon the solid foundation of total abstinence. To promote this we shall endeavor to secure the teaching of scientific temperance in the schools of all lands; shall urge pledge signing among all classes of society, and encourage the compilation and study of scientific facts that relate to the welfare of the race.

Prohibition—Will endeavor to secure in every country the passage of laws making the annihilation of the trade in beverage alcohol.

Purity—Will work for the establishment of world peace through international cooperation.

Equality—The strength of a nation lies in the moral integrity of its people. We will stress therefore, the standard of personal purity for men and women alike, and promote a constructive educational program for the young.

Citizenship—In many lands the en-

THE WORM WILL TURN

The following protest, according to a Nebraska exchange, was recently sent to the collector of internal revenue in that district:

"I have been held up, held down, sandbagged, walked on, flattened out and squeezed, first by the United States government for the federal war tax, the excess profits tax, the Liberty loan bonds, the state, county and city highway tax, the auto tax and city license, and by every society and organization that inventive mind of man can invent to extract what you may not possess; from the society of John the Baptist, the G.A.R., the Women's relief, the League of Nations, the Red Cross, the Iron Cross, and every other cross of all colors, until I feel that I am a cross myself—and by the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., the Old Folks Home, the Children's Home, the Dorcas society and every hospital in town.

"The government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it. I am inspected, suspended, examined and re-examined, informed, required and commanded, so I don't know who I am, where I am, or why I am here.

"All I know is that I am apposed to be an inexhaustible supply of money for every human need, desire or hope of the human race, and because I will not sell all I have got and go out and beg, borrow or steal money to give away, I have been cursed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, tied to, held about, held up, robbed and nearly ruined, and the only reason I am clinging to life is to see what is coming next."

This year's wool clip from the Edmonton district, which was sold in the east by the Canadian Cooperative Wool Growers, Ltd., realized a price exceeding an average of 18 cents per pound after deducting all charges. Lowest gross price was 22 cents and the highest 34 cents per pound.

franchisement of women has brought to their government a great moral force in the realm of politics. We shall continue to work for the political equality of women in the countries which have not granted suffrage to women and in countries where women have the vote, promote programs of education for citizenship in the affairs of government.

Membership—We will promote membership campaigns, setting as a definite goal the enrollment of the teachers of all the world and the doubling of the present membership in the next three years.

Cooperation—We shall endeavor to unite the women of the world in this great organization through cooperation with missionary societies and other welfare organizations.

FATHER AND SON

Be more than his dad,
Be a chum to the lad;
Be a part of his life,
Every hour of the day;
Find time to talk with him,
Find time to walk with him,
Share in his studies
And share in his play;
Take him to places,
To ball games and races,
Teach him the things
That you want him to know;
Don't live apart from him,
Be his best comrade,
He's needing you so!
Never neglect him,
Though young, still respect him,
Hear his opinions,
With patience and pride;
Show him his error,
But be not a terror,
Grim-visaged and fearful,
When he's at your side.
Know what his thoughts are,
Know what his sports are,
Know all his playmates,
It's easy to learn to
Be such a father
That when troubles gather
You'll be the first one
For counsel he'll turn to.
You can inspire him
With courage, and fire him
Hot with ambition
For deeds that are good;
He'll not betray you,
Nor illly repay you,
Nor will he forget you
If you have taught him
The things that you should;
Father and son
Must in all things be one—
Partners in trouble,
And comrades in joy.
More than a dad,
Was the best part you had;
Be such a chum
As you know, to your boy.

SHE HAD Pimples and Blistches on Her Face

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by pimples and other skin troubles which are caused wholly by bad blood.

Many a cheek and chin, cast in the mold of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost, and the possessor of the "pimply face" rendered unhappy and in many cases embarrassed.

There is an effective remedy for these facial defects, and that is "PURPOSE BLOOD BITTERS."

It drives out all the impurities from the blood and leaves the complexion clear and healthy.

Miss Anna Sharp, Clinton, Mass., writes—"I suffered for many years with pimples and blotches on my face, which made me reluctant to go out in company, and I also had bad headaches. One day I bought about a quart of Bitter, and it has relieved me of both the headaches and pimples."

BACK LONGITUDES

THE FACE OF THE DIAL & COMPASS

A silver mounted compass which is nearly 200 years old and is fitted with a dial, also longitudes and latitudes of important cities and ports, was presented by a Miss Buckley, a passenger on board the Canadian Pacific liner Metagama, to Mr. E. Cox, the third class steward, as a token of gratitude while on a voyage to Canada.

Mr. Cox states that the Squire of the parish of Weston, Norfolk, presented the compass many years ago to the Rev. Buckley of Weston, who was Miss Buckley's grandfather, and when he died he left it to her. The compass is in a well-preserved greenish case, inside which is the following inscription:—

"This compass and dial was given me by Sir George Oxenden in 1773 it having been Sir David Clewlands, made at Paris about the year 1727 H. H."

When opened the sun dial and compass is on the face, while on the back of the compass are the longitudes and latitudes.

It was found a very valuable instrument for carrying in the old hunting days.

The annual meeting of the parishioners was held on Wednesday, Jan. 12. Mr. J. Williamson, the people's warden, presented the financial statement for the year ending December 31, 1922. This showed a marked improvement in the support given by members to the Anglican church work in this district. It is to be earnestly hoped that during the ensuing year more of the Anglicans living in the parish will realize their responsibility to give a portion of their incomes for God's work amongst them.

Mr. J. Williamson was re-elected as People's Warden, and Mr. Tubbs again nominated as Incumbent's Warden.

The members of the vestry were re-elected, with the exception of Mr. Shaw and Mrs. C. Brown, who have left the district. Messrs. Hoyle and Barry were elected to serve in their places.

Mr. Wright on behalf of the Parish hall committee, presented his report which was unanimously accepted as read. He was able to inform the parishioners that the hall had been rented for the ensuing six months by the local school board.

It was moved, and passed unanimously that a house with modern conveniences, be rented as soon as possible for the incumbent and Mrs. James. The Wardens and Incumbent were nominated as a committee with power to act in this matter.

Although the truck was practically demolished, the firemen escaped with nothing more serious than body bruises and shock.
